TAX BILL ON CIGARETS NOW GAINING FAVOR

CERTAIN TO BE RECOMMENDED FOR PASSAGE

REP. ROY E. DUNN, OF PELICAN RAPIDS, IS AUTHOR OF MEASURE

CIGARET DEALERS AND SMOKERS VOICE PROTEST AT PUBLIC MEETING

St. Paul, Feb. 15.—(UP)—Despite the protests of cigaret smokers and dealers, voiced in a public meeting, it appeared today that a proposed tax bill on "fags" in Minnesota would be recommended for passage in the house of representatives.

Representative Roy E. Dunn, Pelican Rapids, author of the bill, championed the proposed cigaret tax at a public committee hearing in the state capitol Thursday night in the face of opposition marshaled by representatives of the leading tobacco dealers of the state.

Representative Dunn pointed to the need of additional taxation, particularly on luxuries; explained that more than $2,000,000 would be garnered by a cigaret tax, and pointed to the success of similar measures in North and South Dakota.

The Dunn bill proposes that a 2-cent tax be imposed on each package of 20 cigarets and a 1-cent tax be placed on cigaret papers.

Opponents of the bill contended that "bootlegging" of cigarets would be encouraged by the tax; that it would place an unfair burden on the man in the street, and that dealers should not be called upon to collect taxes for the state government.

It was the popular impression that the house committee on tax and tax laws were in favor of the measure and would recommend it for passage on the floor of the chamber.

Meanwhile two other important projects were under consideration by the state legislators as the sixth week of the sessions drew to a close. The senate finance committee discussed the abolition of the rural credit bureau while the agricultural committee took up suggestions for farm representation on the Minnesota board of regents.

Upon the recommendation of Sen. A. J. Rockne, Zumbrota, chairman, the finance committee voted to appoint a sub-committee to study the condition of the rural credit bureau, apparently to learn if that body had outlived its usefulness.

Senator Rockne pointed out that the bureau had invested about $50,000,000 of the state funds into loans and he said that an investigation should be made into the advisability of halting further loans.

Senators Sullivan, St. Cloud, and Zamboni, Owatonna, agreed that the financial condition of the bureau should be clearly known before more loans were made.

The movement for farm representation on the university board of regents was started in the agricultural committee by Senator Henry Arens, Jordan.

Senator Arens criticized the board for what he termed lack of interest in matters pertaining to agriculture and urged fair representation in the regent body which will be elected by the legislature in March.

The exact method of election of the regents still is to be worked out by the legislature. Representative Otto Kolshorn, Red Wing, and other legislators are expected to suggest some solution for the problem on Monday.

St. Paul, Feb. 15.—A drastic move aimed at plugging up the source of home brew liquor, was started in the Minnesota senate today when Senator Peter Sharpe, Ada, introduced a bill which would prohibit the sale, manufacture or possession hop flavor, unfermented wort, malt of malt extracts which contain hops, liquor or tun liquor.

The Sharpe bill would make the sale, possession or manufacture of these products a gross misdemeanor, punihable by a fine of $300, 90 days in jail, or both, and would provide for the confiscation and destruction of such products.

Establishments which operated under a federal permit would be permitted, by the bill, to possess malt and tun liquor but would not be allowed to sell malt, even without hops or hop flavor, unless they were assured the purchaser did not intend to use the products for illegal purposes.

Legislative Jam Now Envelopes Whole Senate

BILLS BATTER EACH OTHER FOR PRECEDENCE

INVOLVED IN HAZARDOUS CONTEST IS NAVAL CRUISER APPROPRIATION

ALSO HOUSE BILL ON CONGRESSIONAL REAPPORTIONMENT

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Feb. 15.—The legislative jam which has always characterized the closing days of short sessions of congress has now enveloped the senate where bills are being battered against each other in a fight for precedence.

Involved in the hazardous contest are the naval cruisers appropriations, the house bill to reapportion congressional representation of the various states, the Edge bill to start an investigation of the proposed canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific across Nicaragua, the Jones bill increasing penalties of prohibition law violators and numerous other measures.

These measures still have a chance but there are others which appear already to be hopelessly lost, including the proposed $24,000,000 increase for prohibition enforcement.

Unless the bills are passed before noon March 4 they are dead and may have to start life all over again at the next session.

The situation has been made more ludicrous this year because the house has definitely shelved the Norris constitutional amendment which would have prevented jams. The change was passed by the senate a year ago, but house leaders refused to permit it to come to a vote.

In the scramble to get up bills late yesterday the prohibition bill won, although only after an effort to get up the reapportionment bill had been defeated, 47 to 27. The leaders were squeezed out of the picture in their effort to pass the Vinson bill as a substitute for the defeated Caraway cotton and grain futures bill.

The house, which has had an unusually uneventful session, is working on bills on the private calendar, undisturbed by the senate's difficulties.

Washington, Feb. 15. — Decision by the senate finance committee which has the naval appropriation bill under consideration, to make $700,000, of the $12,370,000 requested, available at once, has marked another step in the differences between President Coolidge and congress over the naval construction program.

The action to appropriate the amount with the smaller amount to be available at once, came immediately following submittance to congress by Mr. Coolidge of a proposal that the entire amount be appropriated to start construction during the fiscal year beginning July 1. The proposal ignored the provision of the law requiring five of the ships to be laid down before that time.

The appropriation will be incorporated in the regular navy financial bill which passed the house before the construction bill was enacted by the senate.

SALT CREEK LEASE AFFAIR IS DISCUSSED

DRAGGED INTO ARGUMENTS TODAY IN SENATE SESSION

SENATOR WALSH APPEALS FOR ADOPTION OF HIS REPORT

Washington, Feb. 15. — (UP) — The Salt Creek lease affair which caused a stir in the recent presidential campaign was dragged into discussion before the senate today when Senator Thomas J. Walsh of Montana, conductor of the oil scandals inquiries appealed for adoption of his report.

Chairman Work of the republican national committee and Assistant Attorney General William J. Donovan, who is slated for a post in the Hoover cabinet, were among the government officials Walsh criticized severely for their part in the eight months of negotiations preceding nullification of the Harry Sinclair lease.

Walsh accused Work of blindness to solemnity of his duties as secretary of interior when he authorized renewal of the lease. He blamed Donovan for the delay in the justice department decision nullifying the lease as illegal.

Waiting for Walsh to finish was Chairman Nye of the senate public lands committee who is prepared to say Walsh's accusations are unfair and unjust. Nye and all republican members of his committee rejected the Walsh report in a strictly party vote.

The matter is not expected to reach a vote for several days. Republicans generally are against the report, even including the independent group.

The Jones prohibition bill remained as the unfinished business of the senate while the house was considering minor private bills.

COLLISION IS NARROWLY AVERTED, BRAKEMAN DIES

Wayzata, Minn., Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—A collision between two Great Northern railway trains was narrowly averted here today when William I. Mullen, brakeman, gave his life to duty.

Mullen, brakeman on the Oriental Limited which was stalled behind a broken freight train, ran back down the track to stop a fast approaching mail train. Just as he succeeded in flagging the train to a stop he died from heart disease.

At the same time another passenger train which approached from the opposite direction was stopped in time to avert a crash. On this train was Conductor Ray D. Mullen, brother of the dead man, who gave up his train to take charge of the body.

Buenos Aires, Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Fire was raging today among government oil storage tanks in the dock section here. The tanks were exploding and heavy damage was feared.

YALE UNIVERSITY TO ENGAGE IN A STUDY OF MANKIND

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Yale university will devote the income from $7,500,000 to the study of mankind.

President Angell has announced the establishment of an institute of human relations which will seek to correlate knowledge of the mind and body and of individual and group conduct.

The social and natural science departments of the university will co-operate, President Angell said, to make the study of human conduct "one of the major objectives of Yale's existence."

Editors in Convention Hear Stressed Value of Cost Accounting System in Their Business

PRES. WHITING SOUNDS KEYNOTE OF THE MEETING

PLEADS FOR BETTER BUSINESS MANAGEMENT OF NEWSPAPERS

STATE EDITORIAL ASSOCIATION GROWS TO MEMBERSHIP OF 393

St. Paul, Feb. 15.—(UP)—A larger and stronger Minnesota Editorial Association met here today in its sixty-third annual convention, attended by delegates from every section of this state and by representatives from North Dakota and western Wisconsin.

Called to order at 9:30 A. M. by President E. K. Whiting, Owatonna, the editors prepared to hear addresses by leaders of the state and nation including Governor Theodore Christianson; Dr. W. J. Mayo; Mayor L. C. Hodgson; L. A. Rossman, Grand Rapids, and Irwin Funk, president of the National Editorial Association.

Funk was not scheduled to speak until the afternoon sessions while Governor Christianson, himself a former editor, and Dr. Mayo, world renowned physician, will be the principal speakers at the annual banquet of the association at 6:30 P. M. in the Saint Paul Hotel.

President Whiting sounded what many believed would be the keynote of the meeting in his report this morning when he pleaded for better business management of state newspapers.

"One of the outstanding shortcomings of our craft is that of business management," Whiting said. "In my judgment one of the most serious problems confronting printers and publishers is the deplorable ignorance of the subject of production costs.

"The executives of many of the 20,0000 business failures in 1927, like many publishers, went on the rocks because they did not know what their production costs were.

"Every publisher should have a simple but adequate cost accounting system that he may know his own costs. Keep an accurate time sheet of all chargeable time, accept the hour costs shown by the Porte Price book; multiply your chargeable hours by the hour cost and then add a reasonable profit for yourself.

"Don't 'kid' yourself into the belief that your costs are too high or you may be among the 88 per cent of men who reach the age of 65 years, dependent upon others."

Whiting said the association had grown stronger in the past year. The membership has grown to 393 including a few from North Dakota and Wisconsin, a gain of 72 over last year. Between 80 and 85 per cent of the eligible papers in Minnesota are included in the association membership, he said.

The advent of new and young men into the newspaper field here has added tremendous strength to the state papers, the president said, particularly those trained in schools of journalism and imbued with the ambition to bring forth better newspapers.

Unstinted praise was given by the president to Field Manager Sam S. Haislet, Past President Weber, and Secretary Herbert Hotaling for their "splendid service during the past year."

JOHNSON IN NEW TRY AT RECORD FOR ALTITUDE

TAKES OFF FROM WRIGHT FIELD, DAYTON, OHIO, AT 11:27 A. M.

FLIES ALONE IN SAME PLANE IN WHICH HE MADE 39,000 FEET

Dayton, O., Feb. 15.—After climbing to 36,000 feet, Lt. Harry Johnson of Selfridge Field, Michigan, was forced to abandon an altitude record attempt today when his plane developed super-charger trouble.

Dayton, Ohio, Feb. 15.—(UP)—Lieutenant Harry Johnson, of Selfridge Field, Mich., took off from Wright Field at 11:27 A. M. today in an attempt to establish a new world's altitude record.

Johnson was alone. He flew the same plane in which he ascended to 39,0000 feet early this week. At that time he was cheated of a new record because he landed at Norton Field, Columbus, O.

He encountered temperatures 76 degrees below zero in his first flight and ran into clouds of ice crystals which obscured his vision of the earth.

Johnson was accompanied by Captain A. W. Stevens, an army air photographer, on the first flight.

The present record is 38,400 feet, held by Lieutenant C. C. Champion of the navy. Johnson was equipped as before. He wore electrically heated goggles and gloves and a face mask to shield him from frigid temperatures in the rarified atmosphere into which he expected to ascend.

CHICAGO AUTHORITIES IN DRIVE TO FIND PERPETRATORS OF MASSACRE

BELIEVE IMPORTED GUNMEN SHOT DOWN 7 MEN IN GARAGE

Chicago, Feb. 15.—(UP)—Squads of patrolmen cruised throughout gangland districts in Chicago today, rounding up all persons with police records.

The drive was organized in an effort by police to find a trace of the five men who yesterday lined up seven men in a garage and shot them to death in cold blood. The seven men had no suspicion of their doom when the murderers entered as two of the men wore the uniform of policemen.

Starting early, the police squads crusaded throughout the night. The murders were the most spectacular in the long and bloody feuds of the liquor traffic and they served to arouse police to the most determined effort ever staged to rid the city of gangsters.

It is highly doubtful, however, that the men who committed the massacre will be brought to official justice. There is little question but that they were imported killers.

Chicago, Feb. 15.—Fear, not of the law but of the leaden hail which mowed down seven men in gangland's first massacre, drove the leading figures in Chicago's beer traffic to the safety of their guarded haunts today.

The Mexican "standoff" execution of seven henchmen of George "Bugs" Moran, recorded as the St. Valentine's Day massacre, presaged certain death for the few remaining powers of gangland. The throne of "Scarface Al" Capone was tottering—the forces of one of his trusted allies, Moran, were wiped out.

The flare of machine gun and shotgun fire directed at the seven men lined against the brick wall of a north side beer truck garage left Moran virtually unprotected. Various rumors said he had been wounded but police believed it impossible that any one of the intended victims of the planned executions could have escaped.

Capone and his deadly rival, Joe Aiello, ruler of the Aiello mob, were absent from the city.

Only one witness to the slaughter remained alive today, a cowering police dog which looked on, chained to a beer truck, while the five executioners herded their victims against the brick wall and riddled their bodies.

Police reached the scene while the blood still flowed along the line of execution. Eighty empty machine gun and shot gun shells were on the floor, less than fifteen feet from the wall, presumably the distance the executioners stood from their victims.

The seven men were: James Clark, Dr. Reinhart Schwimmer, Frank Gusenberg, Peter Gusenberg, Adam Heyers, John May and Alfred Weinshank.

Frank Gusenberg was conscious when found but his training in gangland demanded that he adhere to its code of ethics. "Nobody shot me," he gasped in answer to a police question.

Persons here who know the inside of gang doings believe this slaughter was another step by the Aiello gang to oust Al Capone as overlord of gangland.

A special coroner's jury was called to meet at 10 A. M. today to investigate the murders.

Hoover Cabinet Nearing Completion

With the exception of the posts of Attorney-General, Secretaries of Navy and Commerce, it seems that President-elect Herbert Hoover has completed his task of selecting his new cabinet. Those posts, which seem to be assured are Ray Lyman Wilbur, upper left, of California, Secretary of the Interior; Andrew W. Mellon, upper center, of Pennsylvania, Secretary of Treasury; Henry L. Stimson, upper left, of New York, Secretary of State. Lower, left to right, Walter F. Brown, of Ohio, Postmaster-General; William H. Doak, of West Virginia, Secretary of Labor; William M. Jardine, of Kansas, Secretary of Agriculture, and William J. Donovan, of New York Secretary of War.

The seven men were: James Clark, Dr. Reinhart Schwimmer, Frank Gusenberg, Peter Gusenberg, Adam Heyers, John May and Alfred Weinshank.

Frank Gusenberg was conscious when found but his training in gangland demanded that he adhere to its code of ethics. "Nobody shot me," he gasped in answer to a police question.

Persons here who know the inside of gang doings believe this slaughter was another step by the Aiello gang to oust Al Capone as overlord of gangland.

A special coroner's jury was called to meet at 10 A. M. today to investigate the murders.

INVOLVED IN HAZARDOUS CONTEST IS NAVAL CRUISER APPROPRIATION

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, Feb. 15.—The legislative jam which has always characterized the closing days of short sessions of congress has now enveloped the senate where bills are being battered against each other in a fight for precedence.

Involved in the hazardous contest are the naval cruisers appropriations, the house bill to reapportion congressional representation of the various states, the Edge bill to start an investigation of the proposed canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific across Nicaragua, the Jones bill increasing penalties of prohibition law violators and numerous other measures.

These measures still have a chance but there are others which appear already to be hopelessly lost, including the proposed $24,000,000 increase for prohibition enforcement.

Unless the bills are passed before noon March 4 they are dead and may have to start life all over again at the next session.

The situation has been made more ludicrous this year because the house has definitely shelved the Norris constitutional amendment which would have prevented jams. The change was passed by the senate a year ago, but house leaders refused to permit it to come to a vote.

In the scramble to get up bills late yesterday the prohibition bill won, although only after an effort to get up the reapportionment bill had been defeated, 47 to 27. The leaders were squeezed out of the picture in their effort to pass the Vinson bill as a substitute for the defeated Caraway cotton and grain futures bill.

The house, which has had an unusually uneventful session, is working on bills on the private calendar, undisturbed by the senate's difficulties.

Washington, Feb. 15. — Decision by the senate finance committee which has the naval appropriation bill under consideration, to make $700,000, of the $12,370,000 requested, available at once, has marked another step in the differences between President Coolidge and congress over the naval construction program.

The action to appropriate the amount with the smaller amount to be available at once, came immediately following submittance to congress by Mr. Coolidge of a proposal that the entire amount be appropriated to start construction during the fiscal year beginning July 1. The proposal ignored the provision of the law requiring five of the ships to be laid down before that time.

The appropriation will be incorporated in the regular navy financial bill which passed the house before the construction bill was enacted by the senate.

NATIONAL BANK RESOURCES ARE GROWING LARGER

Washington, Feb. 15. — (U.P.) — Resources of national banks in the continental United States, Alaska and Hawaii have passed thirty billion dollars larger than at any other time in the history of the national bank system, Comptroller of Currency Pole announced today.

CRAZED MOTHER KILLS SELF AND HER 6 CHILDREN

New York, Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—A suddenly crazed mother locker her six sleeping children and herself in a bedroom here today, ripped the top off a gas range and permitted the illuminating gas to asphyxiate them.

This was the opinion of Police Inspector Anderson after investigating the death of Mrs. Maria Pazzo and her six children, ranging in age from a few months to thirteen years.

REVIEW PAPER ON NATIONAL DEFENSE

Members of D. A. R. Discuss Need of Defense of America's Independence

MRS. C. D. McKAY ENTERTAINS

Mrs. Martha A. Bronson, Gives Glowing Tribute to Memory of Col. Halsted

Mrs. C. D. McKay extended warm hospitality to the Daughters of the American Revolution, at her home Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Arthur Turcotte assisted her at the tea tables.

A pamphlet explaining the society's attitude toward the question of "National Defense" was reviewed and discussed. While deploring the horrors of war and joining heartily in every effort to estbalish world peace, the society maintains a constant defense of the oldest and best ideals of the nation—the integrity of home and marriage, the responsibilities as well as the privileges of citizenship, the necessity for universal education, respect for the Bible, the church and the flag, reverence for the nation's heroes and for the constitution.

Attention was called to the fact that much of the work of exploration and development of this great country has been done by the army and navy, instead of being only instruments for the promotion of war, as the agitator and "pacifist" assert, they are sure guarantees of peace. The cost of this branch of national defense is only six cents out of every dollar of government expenditures. The total outlay is less than one-half the amount spent on chewing gum and candy.

Birthday greetings from the Samuel Huntington Chapter were sent to Minnesota's grand old man, President Emeritus Folwell of the university. A resume of the life of the late Col. Halsted was spread upon the minutes of the society, and the regent, Mrs. Martha A. Bronson, spoke a few words of glowing tribute to his memory.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS ACTIVITIES

The various Camp Fire groups of the city are planning a Grand Council Fire which will be held on the evening of March 1 in the Chamber of Commerce.

The Council Fire is the formal or serious meeting in the Camp Fire Girl's program. It is a quiet serious hour around the fire, where honor beads are awarded, ranks conferred and the girls rededicate themselves to their Camp Fire ideals.

A grand Council Fire is held once or twice a year. At that time all the groups of a community hold their Council Fire together. Parents and friends are invited.

The Tatapochon Camp Fire began their new year by electing officers which are as follows:

President — Margaret Betty Mahlum.

Vice President — Dorothy June Opsahl.

Secretary—Frances Peterson.

Vice Secretary—Genevieve Tweet.

Treasurer—Annetta Erickson.

General Chairman — Barbara Zapffe.

Reporter—Mary Hoffman.

After electing officers we reviewed our old songs. A meeting will be held once a week.

All the girls earned one of the Fire Makers requirements which is to tie a square knot five times correctly.

Three of the girls prepared and served two meals for meetings of Camp Fire.

The Oawensa girls held their regular meeting Monday after school. The meeting was opened by all the girls giving the pledge of allegiance to the flag. A hike was planned after which the meeting adjourned and we learned five new folk dances representing the following countries: Sweden, Scotland, Germany, Czecho-Slovakia and Norway.

Last Thursday after school 17 Oawensa girls with Miss Vanasek and Miss Fiergolla enjoyed a hike, stopping at Van's Cafe for lunch of cocoa and doughnuts which was a complete surprise.

Along the hike the girls identified trees which they had studied. They also stopped at the various stores to examine the exhibits of the Boy Scouts which was very interesting.

Up to date there are 13 Oawensa girls who have never missed a meeting since we organized. There are 20 girls in the group.

The Old Fashioned Bouquet held a coasting party Monday after school. Mardell invited the group to come to her house afterwards for lunch.

REVIEW PAPER ON NATIONAL DEFENSE

MRS. C. D. McKAY ENTERTAINS

Mrs. Martha A. Bronson, Gives Glowing Tribute to Memory of Col. Halsted

Mrs. C. D. McKay extended warm hospitality to the Daughters of the American Revolution, at her home Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Arthur Turcotte assisted her at the tea tables.

A pamphlet explaining the society's attitude toward the question of "National Defense" was reviewed and discussed. While deploring the horrors of war and joining heartily in every effort to estbalish world peace, the society maintains a constant defense of the oldest and best ideals of the nation—the integrity of home and marriage, the responsibilities as well as the privileges of citizenship, the necessity for universal education, respect for the Bible, the church and the flag, reverence for the nation's heroes and for the constitution.

Attention was called to the fact that much of the work of exploration and development of this great country has been done by the army and navy, instead of being only instruments for the promotion of war, as the agitator and "pacifist" assert, they are sure guarantees of peace. The cost of this branch of national defense is only six cents out of every dollar of government expenditures. The total outlay is less than one-half the amount spent on chewing gum and candy.

Birthday greetings from the Samuel Huntington Chapter were sent to Minnesota's grand old man, President Emeritus Folwell of the university. A resume of the life of the late Col. Halsted was spread upon the minutes of the society, and the regent, Mrs. Martha A. Bronson, spoke a few words of glowing tribute to his memory.

KNUTSON NOW A COMRADE

CONGRESSMAN HAROLD KNUTSON, of our Sixth district, recently received a high honor from Spanish American war veterans, who appreciate his services in behalf of the veterans in general.

As reported in the National Tribune, members of Worth Bagley Camp, No. 2, U. S. W. V. of St. Paul, desiring to express their appreciation of the long demonstrated friendship of Congressman Knutson for the veterans of the Spanish war period, decided that the highest honor they could bestow upon him would be that of membership in their camp, so last fall they voted to make him an honorary member.

By the time the approval of this act had been received from the commander of the Department of Minnesota and the commander-in-chief, Mr. Knutson had returned to his duties as a member of the House of Representatives in Washington, D. C., and as he would be unable to get back to St. Paul until after the adjournment of Congress, the officers of Bagley Camp requested that the muster in and presenting of the insignia of the organization be given Mr. Knutson in Washington.

Choosing a time when many prominent members of the organization were in Washington arrangements were made to perform the ceremony on the night of Jan. 22. The scene was in the banquet hall of the Army and Navy Club where a dinner in honor of Mr. Knutson and Col. Grayson was given by The National Tribune.

There were present to witness the presentation many members of Mr. Knutson's committee and the representatives of the United Spanish War Veterans.

Col. Grayson, in stating the pleasure it gave him to officiate for Worth Bagley Camp, recounted the many acts of friendship toward the veterans and their dependents evidenced by Mr. Knutson throughout his years of service in the House of Representatives and his interest in all matters affecting veterans, both in his own district and state as well as nationally.

The commnder-in-chief recited the regulations of the U. S. W. V., which state that honorary membership is not to be bestowed lightly, but only on those of proven worth to the Nation and of proven friendship for the men who have followed the flag.

The entire life of Mr. Knutson, he said, had proven him worthy of the comradeship of the men who answered McKinley's call, and he deemed it one of the great distinctions coming to him as commander-in-chief to thus welcome Mr. Knutson to the ranks.

In reply Mr. Knutson said that he had always honored those who had borne arms in defense of the country, believing that they deserved the best the country could give them; that his whole attitude was sympathetic, and that his greatest difficulty in dealing with the veterans was to prevent himself thinking wholly of their interests and forgetting the interests of the taxpayers.

He assured Col. Grayson and the veterans present that in the future, as in the past, their interests would be his.

CO-OPERATING ON COUNTY ROADS

THE lecture read to the Twin Cities and in particular to Minneapolis by Senator Rockne was a proper rebuke upon pointless opposition to a gasoline tax policy already decided by popular vote Diversion of one-third the gasoline tax receipts to the counties for local road building purposes now is authorized by the State Constitution. It is true that the funds come largely from the cities and will now be spent in the rural districts. But that issue was settled at the November election when, with the help of large numbers of city voters, Amendment No. 1 was written into the Constitution, says the St. Paul Dispatch.

An important question remaining undecided, however, involves the manner in which the allotments to the counties will be spent. It is to the interest of the State that these funds, raised by State taxation, be economically and efficiently used in the construction of local roads.

A proposal now before the Legislature provides that the State would apportion the funds among 87 counties, relinquishing all existing control and safeguards over the manner of expenditure. "We feel," says Senator Rockne explaining this plan, "that the fund thus obtained, in addition to the revenue heretofore paid, should be spent by these people who have had no benefits in all the years gone by." He adds that if the money is improperly spent another legislative session can quickly remedy the evils presumably by restoring State supervision which he proposes to abolish now.

This, however, was not the argument of gas tax diversion proponents during the Autumn campaign. They did not inform the public that a changed method of expenditure was concerned. Instead, the Gas Tax Amendment committee assured people of the cities that the money would be distributed as the proceeds of the one-mill road tax now are distributed, going on state aid roads and for projects approved by the Highway department.

Before election this plan was represented as admirable. The post-election proposal is to junk it. Senator Rockne has given no reason why the counties should refuse the guidance hitherto given by the Highway department in the administration of State-aid road funds.

It is desirable, as the Senator says, to have co-operation for the successful construction of county roads. Co-operation between State and counties is the essential principle in the present plan well worth maintaining.

SHE ZIPS

ONE of the greatest inventions of this age of scientific and mechanical development is the zipper fastening. A few years ago the zipper was unknown to the world, now it is seen everywhere, on sweaters, on overshoes, on children's leggings, on women's handbags, on men's tobacco pouches and probably, if one looked closely, in a hundred other places.

How the zipper works, the mechanical principle on which it operates, we have never been able to understand precisely, though we have observed it in action many times. We only know that it does work and that is enough. All education may be valuable, as Dr. Eliot said, but we have never seen much sense in burdening one's mind with the details of matters outside one's own sphere, especially when these details come hard, if at all. It would be like compiling one's own dictionary when Webster's and the Standard and the Century are available. One might learn a lot, but one certainly would have to take a great deal of time from one's regular work. All we really care to know about the zipper is that it zips and it certainly does that. We have heard tales of zippers that, after zipping, refused to unzip and had to have their clenched teeth separated by the use of cold chisels, but we imagine such instances are very rare, if not wholly fanciful. We have never seen anyone being hewn out of a sweater or a galosh, though, if it had to happen anyway, we should like to.—Columbus Ohio State Journal.

A DREAD fear has been aroused in the breasts of some people. If Col. Lindbergh becomes a benedict, he may quit flying.

LEGISLATURES, just like we common mortals, find it easier to spend than to save money.

EVELETH is mapping out a plan of mine taxation relief.

EUROPEAN CITIES WORRY THROUGH COLD

SHORTAGE OF FOOD, FUEL AND DRINKING WATER MORE ACUTE

COLD MOST INTENSE IN MANY PLACES IN CENTURIES

London, Feb. 15.—(UP)—Shortage of food, fuel and drinking water in European cities grew more acute today under the continued pressure of the most intense cold in many years, and at some points, in centuries.

Berlin, Vienna, Belgrade and London suffered principally, the latter from a water shortage which was growing intense. Snowbound freight trains were unable to take food and fuel into Berlin and Vienna.

The Thames, Seine and Rhine were frozen in places for the first time in years and 100 vessels were icebound in the Baltic sea. Shipping was hindered seriously, many vessels running aground before driving snowstorms along the English coast.

The canals of Venice were filled with blocks of ice as the city shivered in the worst weather since 1788. Peasants and fishermen living on many small islands were isolated without food when the lagoons were covered with ice. The city has been without eggs and milk for two days.

Economic results of the hard winter in Germany doubtless will cost the country a sum equalling a large part of a Dawes plan annuity. German business is at a standstill and at least 250,000 persons are unemployed.

In Paris, the temperature was 10 above zero. Four more inches of snow fell at Cannes Wednesday night and water tanks there were frozen.

A rescue train was sent to Szekesfehervar, Hungary, where a train with 170 passengers was imprisoned in a snowdrift.

The westbound Orient Express which left Vienna at 9 A. M. today was snowbound near Rekawinkel, Austria. The Riviera Express from Budapest has been snowbound since Wednesday morning near Szekesfehervar, Hungary, and seven other trains were snowbound in the same vicinity. The snow there was reported seven feet deep.

The Budapest-Vienna Express has been snowbound near Moshon, Hungary, since Wednesday noon.

The fuel shortage grew worse in Czecho-Slovakia. All trains, except those carrying food and coal, were cancelled.

Railway service through the continent and in England was disrupted completely or badly impaired. Trains between Vienna and Budapest were suspended temporarily because of a snow blockade.

Wolves and wild boars abandoned their forest lairs and encroached on the edges of civilization. More than a score of persons have been killed this week by wolves.

A Gypsy caravan said to number 40 was drowned Wednesday when the band started across the river Drave on ice that was too thin, reports received at Vienna from Zagreb said today. The accident occurred near the village of Tolowec.

Eight persons of advanced age have died from the cold, reports from Sandwich said today. Sandwich is suffering a severe coal shortage because transportation has been blocked by the freezing of the river.

The death toll for the past six days totalled 174 specifically reported. Many other deaths were believed to have occurred.

KNUTSON NOW A COMRADE

CONGRESSMAN HAROLD KNUTSON, of our Sixth district, recently received a high honor from Spanish American war veterans, who appreciate his services in behalf of the veterans in general.

As reported in the National Tribune, members of Worth Bagley Camp, No. 2, U. S. W. V. of St. Paul, desiring to express their appreciation of the long demonstrated friendship of Congressman Knutson for the veterans of the Spanish war period, decided that the highest honor they could bestow upon him would be that of membership in their camp, so last fall they voted to make him an honorary member.

By the time the approval of this act had been received from the commander of the Department of Minnesota and the commander-in-chief, Mr. Knutson had returned to his duties as a member of the House of Representatives in Washington, D. C., and as he would be unable to get back to St. Paul until after the adjournment of Congress, the officers of Bagley Camp requested that the muster in and presenting of the insignia of the organization be given Mr. Knutson in Washington.

Choosing a time when many prominent members of the organization were in Washington arrangements were made to perform the ceremony on the night of Jan. 22. The scene was in the banquet hall of the Army and Navy Club where a dinner in honor of Mr. Knutson and Col. Grayson was given by The National Tribune.

There were present to witness the presentation many members of Mr. Knutson's committee and the representatives of the United Spanish War Veterans.

Col. Grayson, in stating the pleasure it gave him to officiate for Worth Bagley Camp, recounted the many acts of friendship toward the veterans and their dependents evidenced by Mr. Knutson throughout his years of service in the House of Representatives and his interest in all matters affecting veterans, both in his own district and state as well as nationally.

The commnder-in-chief recited the regulations of the U. S. W. V., which state that honorary membership is not to be bestowed lightly, but only on those of proven worth to the Nation and of proven friendship for the men who have followed the flag.

The entire life of Mr. Knutson, he said, had proven him worthy of the comradeship of the men who answered McKinley's call, and he deemed it one of the great distinctions coming to him as commander-in-chief to thus welcome Mr. Knutson to the ranks.

In reply Mr. Knutson said that he had always honored those who had borne arms in defense of the country, believing that they deserved the best the country could give them; that his whole attitude was sympathetic, and that his greatest difficulty in dealing with the veterans was to prevent himself thinking wholly of their interests and forgetting the interests of the taxpayers.

He assured Col. Grayson and the veterans present that in the future, as in the past, their interests would be his.

CO-OPERATING ON COUNTY ROADS

THE lecture read to the Twin Cities and in particular to Minneapolis by Senator Rockne was a proper rebuke upon pointless opposition to a gasoline tax policy already decided by popular vote Diversion of one-third the gasoline tax receipts to the counties for local road building purposes now is authorized by the State Constitution. It is true that the funds come largely from the cities and will now be spent in the rural districts. But that issue was settled at the November election when, with the help of large numbers of city voters, Amendment No. 1 was written into the Constitution, says the St. Paul Dispatch.

An important question remaining undecided, however, involves the manner in which the allotments to the counties will be spent. It is to the interest of the State that these funds, raised by State taxation, be economically and efficiently used in the construction of local roads.

A proposal now before the Legislature provides that the State would apportion the funds among 87 counties, relinquishing all existing control and safeguards over the manner of expenditure. "We feel," says Senator Rockne explaining this plan, "that the fund thus obtained, in addition to the revenue heretofore paid, should be spent by these people who have had no benefits in all the years gone by." He adds that if the money is improperly spent another legislative session can quickly remedy the evils presumably by restoring State supervision which he proposes to abolish now.

This, however, was not the argument of gas tax diversion proponents during the Autumn campaign. They did not inform the public that a changed method of expenditure was concerned. Instead, the Gas Tax Amendment committee assured people of the cities that the money would be distributed as the proceeds of the one-mill road tax now are distributed, going on state aid roads and for projects approved by the Highway department.

Before election this plan was represented as admirable. The post-election proposal is to junk it. Senator Rockne has given no reason why the counties should refuse the guidance hitherto given by the Highway department in the administration of State-aid road funds.

It is desirable, as the Senator says, to have co-operation for the successful construction of county roads. Co-operation between State and counties is the essential principle in the present plan well worth maintaining.

SHE ZIPS

ONE of the greatest inventions of this age of scientific and mechanical development is the zipper fastening. A few years ago the zipper was unknown to the world, now it is seen everywhere, on sweaters, on overshoes, on children's leggings, on women's handbags, on men's tobacco pouches and probably, if one looked closely, in a hundred other places.

How the zipper works, the mechanical principle on which it operates, we have never been able to understand precisely, though we have observed it in action many times. We only know that it does work and that is enough. All education may be valuable, as Dr. Eliot said, but we have never seen much sense in burdening one's mind with the details of matters outside one's own sphere, especially when these details come hard, if at all. It would be like compiling one's own dictionary when Webster's and the Standard and the Century are available. One might learn a lot, but one certainly would have to take a great deal of time from one's regular work. All we really care to know about the zipper is that it zips and it certainly does that. We have heard tales of zippers that, after zipping, refused to unzip and had to have their clenched teeth separated by the use of cold chisels, but we imagine such instances are very rare, if not wholly fanciful. We have never seen anyone being hewn out of a sweater or a galosh, though, if it had to happen anyway, we should like to.—Columbus Ohio State Journal.

A DREAD fear has been aroused in the breasts of some people. If Col. Lindbergh becomes a benedict, he may quit flying.

LEGISLATURES, just like we common mortals, find it easier to spend than to save money.

EVELETH is mapping out a plan of mine taxation relief.

In the same bracket with Brainerd will be Staples while in the opposing bracket will be Crosby-Ironton.

Coach Warren Kasch today announced his lineup for tonight's game with Crosby-Ironton at the latter's floor as follows: Fuller, Hautala, forwards; Paine, center; Geist, Foster, guards; Halvorson, Hoffbauer, Schuety and Garvey, subs.

Goedderz will not be in tonight's lineup because of an injured foot. He is expected to be in shape, however, for the Aitkin game on Feb. 22.

Brainerd will find tough opposition in the range team this evening. The C.-I. boys have been going good this season and are equally up to their strength of the last two seasons.

On the other hand the Brainerd team has shown admirable spunk in their games this season and has done well considering the circumstances.

The team to represent Brainerd in the district tournament at Crosby this year will be selected after the Aitkin game. Eight men will be picked. Selection will be governed considerably by the performance of the players tonight, at Aitkin, and for their showing in past games this season.

A special bus will leave for Crosby-Ironton at 6:30 P. M. The game will start at 8 P. M.

YOUNG SCHAEFER NOW THREE-TIME WORLD CHAMPION

WINS TITLE AGAIN LAST NIGHT WHEN HE DEFEATED WELKER COCHRAN

RUNS 400 TO 328 IN 11 INNINGS IN FINAL MATCH 18.2 BALKLINE

New York, Feb. 15. — (UP) — Young Jake Schaefer of Chicago, who learned his billiards at the knee of his father, the great Jake Schaefer of pre-Hoppe days, is now a three-time world champion in his own right.

Schaefer won the title for the third time in his youthful career when he defeated Welker Cochran of Hollywood, Calif., 400 to 328 in 11 innings in the final match of the 1929 International 18.2 Balkline Tournament last night.

Jake took the lead with a run of 96 in the second inning and was never headed, although Cochran — fighting against the toughest of breaks—put up a game battle and several times threatened to take the lead.

Schaefer's best inning was the sixth in which he gathered and regathered the three ivory balls for a brilliant run of 169. Cochran's best run was 82 in the eighth inning.

Although Cochran's defeat put him in a triple tie on games won and lost with Edward Horemans of Belgium and Kinrey Matsuyama of Japan, he won second prize money by virtue of his average run for the tournament.

Horemans finished third and Matsuyama fourth. Hagenlacher of Germany finished fifth and Felix Grange of France sixth.

TWENTY ROUND FIGHTS EXCEEDINGLY RARE IN RECENT MATCHES

Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 15. — (UP)—Mickey Walker, the middle weight champion, will defend his crown on July 4 at Las Vegas in a 20-round bout.

The agreement for the bout was signed yesterday and Tom Kennedy, who plays villain roles in the movies, is looking for an opponent. Ace Hudkins probably will get the call, or Rene De Vos who lost to Hudkins recently in New York, may try to go the route with the champion.

Twenty-round fights have been exceedingly rare in recent matches and that fact alone may help to promote interest in the fight.

Kennedy bought an option on Walker's services from Jack Kearns, Mickey's manager. The promoter has until April 1 to raise $150,000, when Kearns and Walker will sign a more definite contract.

Las Vegas is ten hours from Los Angeles by automobile and seven by train. The arena there will seat 40,000 persons normally.

SCHMELING IN THREAT TO QUIT TITLE QUEST

New York, Feb. 15. (U.P.) The boxing world today awaited the outcome of Max Schmeling's threat to quit the quest for the heavyweight title unless freed from the contract which binds him to Arthur Bulow, his German manager.

Schmeling, whose victories have been the sensation of the last few weeks, was ordered by the New York state boxing commission to retain Bulow. He has been trying to dispose of his fellow countryman in favor of Joe Jacobs, American manager, who now owns a part interest in his contract.

The commission upheld its former resolution recognizing Bulow as Schmeling's manager and by that ruling no contract for Schmeling will be recognized in New York state unless it bears Bulow's signature.

GRIFFITH MEETS LOMSKI TONIGHT IN 10 ROUND GO

Detroit, Feb. 15. — (U.P.) — Tuffy Griffith, Sioux City, and Leo Lomski, the Aberdeen assassin, meet here tonight in a ten round go.

Griffith is expected to have a six pound weight advantage, weighing in around 176.

About 16,000 spectators will attend the fight, which is expected to produce fireworks.

HORNSBY'S BAT MAY BRING THE PENNANT HOME

ACQUISITION OF RAJAH MEANS MUCH TO CHICAGO CUBS

POSSIBLE SHIFT TO BE MADE AT THIRD BASE, NEW PITCHING MATERIAL

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Feb. 15. — Rogers Hornsby's bat may mean a pennant for the Chicago Cubs.

Few changes—the acquisition of Hornsby, a possible shift at third base and added pitching material of a doubtful quantity—have been made in the Cubs, but the presence alone of the champion batsman of the National League may spell the difference between third and first place from 1928 to 1929.

Hornsby, who cost William Wrigley almost a half million in cash and players, is calculated not only to add punch to the Cubs' attack but to exert a steadying influence over Woody English which will cause the young shortstop to develop into a star of the first magnitude.

Hornsby, who is 33, batted .387 as manager of the Boston Braves last season. With worries of a manager off his shoulders, Hornsby certainly should play as well the coming season as he did last season.

Those who expect Hornsby to fall into his evil ways again were surprised to learn recently that he had signed a pledge with President Veeck to refrain from betting on the races or any other gambling games during the life of his three-year contract with the Cubs.

The only contemplated shift in the remainder of the line-up is to try Clarence Blair and Danny Taylor at third base along with Clyde Beck. Taylor, who also plays the outfield, batted .374 for Memphis and has a reputation as a daring base runner. Blair batted .294 for Little Rock.

Charley Grimm at first base and English at shortstop will complete the infield. The only other infielder on the roster is Norman McMillan, who was a utility man last season.

The Cubs have the same group of outfielders as last season. Stephenson in left, Wilson in center and Cuyler in right will form the regular trio, with Heathcote in a reserve role. Taylor may be used in the outfield if he fails to win a berth at third base.

Five new pitchers are on the squad. Outstanding among them is Mike Cvengros, southpaw who has had tryouts with Washington and the White Sox. Cvengros, who won 21 games and lost 8 for Wichita Falls, is counted on to replace Percy Jones, shipped to the Braves in the Hornsby deal.

The other new pitchers are Clyde Day, who won 17 games and lost 18 for Omaha; Roy Hansen, who won 12 games and lost 17 for Elmira, N. Y.; Berlyn Horne, who won 15 games and lost 17 for Jersey City; and Eddie Lautenbacher, who won 10 games and lost five for Reading.

Hal Carlson, who was ill most of last season, hopes to return in good shape and take his regular turn along with Sheriff Blake, Guy Bush, Charley Root, Art Nehf and Percy Malone. Henry Grampp and Edward Holley, who were with the Cubs last season, may develop into regulars.

Gabby Hartnett and Mike Gonzales will again take care of the catching. Tom Angley, who batted .323 for Atlanta, and Bob Grace, who batted .336 for Little Rock, will be given tryouts as catchers.

The Cubs' tentative squad follows:

Catchers — Hartnett, Gonzales, Angley or Grace.

Pitchers — Blake, Bush, Carlson, Cvengros, Malone, Nehf, Root, Grampp Day, Lautenbacher.

Infield—Grimm at first; Hornsby at second; English at shortstop; Beck, Taylor or Blair at third. McMillan, reserve.

ST. LOUIS BROWNS HAVE COME LONG WAY PAST YEAR

DAN HOWLEY IN 1928 COMPLETELY REBUILT THE OUTFIT

PROVED SENSATION OF AMERICAN LEAGUE BY WINNING 3RD PLACE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Feb. 15—The St. Louis Browns have come a long way since this time a year ago.

Completely rebuilt last season by Dan Howley, the Browns proved the sensation of the American League by finishing in third place. New players acquired since last season may bolster the Browns into a high-powered pennant contender the coming season.

Fifteen new players have been obtained to strengthen the Browns' weak spots. Five of the most promising are pitchers. They include Warren (Rip) Collins, who formerly pitched for the Yankees, Tigers and Red Sox and won 17 games and lost 9 for Toronto in the International League last season; Claude Jonnard, who won 19 games and lost 11 for Milwaukee; Herb Cobb, who won 14 games and lost 7 for Wichita Falls; John Buvid, who won 21 games and lost 11 for the Spartanburg South Atlantic League club, and Oscar Estrada, who won 13 games and lost 12 for Shreveport.

Collins, Cobb and Jonnard are being counted on to help Crowder, Gray, Blaeholder, Stewart, Coffman and Ogden keep the Browns well up in the race.

Three new catchers have been added to the veterans, Wally Schang and Clyde Manion. The outstanding of these is Dick Ferrell, who received a bonus of $25,000 for signing with the Browns after Judge Landis declared him a free agent, releasing him from previous entanglements. He caught 126 games and batted .333 for Columbus last season. He is expected to be the Browns' first string catcher. Harvey Johnson from the Greenville, South Atlantic League club, and Ike Danning from the New Haven Eastern League club are the other two catching additions.

The Browns' infield may find two new figures at second and third base. Lu Blue will again play first base, and Ralph Kress will be at shortstop, but the other two places are doubtful.

Ed Roetz, who batted .267 for Wichita Falls, and Leonard Dondero who batted .373 for Tulsa, will battle with Otis Brannon for the keystone assignment. Edward Grimes, who batted .334 for Tulsa, will compete with Leonard Sax and Frank O'Rourke for third base.

George Stanton, a youngster from Wichita Falls with a batting average of .361, will make a bid for first base.

Two new outfielders will compete with Heinie Manush, Earl McNeely and Fred Schulte for the outfield positions. Tom Jenkins, who was up before with the Red Sox, and batted .348 for Wichita Falls, is considered a vastly improved player. He has hit 69 home runs in three seasons in the Texas League.

The other recruit outfielder is Morris Badgro, who was coached how to hit by Sam Crawford while playing with the University of Southern California. He batted .334 for Tulsa last season.

Frank McGowan, who joined the Browns from Kansas City last season, also will be available for outfield duty.

The probable squad includes:

Catchers—Ferrell, Schang, Manion.

Pitchers—Gray, Crowder, Ogden, Blaeholder, Stewart, Coffman, Collins, Cobb, Jonnard, Strelicki.

Infield—Blue at first, Dondero or Brannon at second, Kress at shortstop, O'Rourke or Grimes at third.

Outfield — Manush, Schulte, McNeely, Jenkins, McGowan and Badgro, reserves.

GOOSE GOSLIN, of the Washington Senators, nosed out Heinie Manush, of the St. Louis Browns, for the hitting honors in the American League by a one point margin last season. If you like your decimals long drawn-out, the official league standing on the two sluggers doped as follows:

	G	AB	R	H	2B	3B	HR	BA
Goslin	135	496	173	289	39	19	17	.3763
Manush	154	638	241	367	47	29	12	.3777

For quite a time prior to the publication of the official league standings it was thought that Manush had won out and there are still a lot of fans who feel that Heinie deserved the honor over Goslin in view of the fact that he had performed in so many more games than Goose. But the league figures stand and Goslin's name will go down with baseball immortals.

Goslin was out of the Washington line-up for some time, owing to an injured arm, and even during the season Goose never threw a ball in from the outfield more than a few times. Bob Reeves, the Senator's shortstop, dashed back whenever a ball was cracked into Goslin's territory and relayed the throw back into the infield.

The fact that Bucky Harris kept Goslin in the lineup at Washington last year despite his injury was a great tribute to the base hit. Harris figured, and rightly, that any runs which came in for the opposition due to Goose's inability to get the ball back would be more than offset by Goslin's ability with the mace. No one seems to know just how Goslin's arm was injured. There was a story going the rounds that he had first sprained it while pitching horseshoes during Spring training, but Goslin never admitted that this was the cause of the trouble and, for that matter, the exact cause has never been publicly settled. The arm was bad, or supposed to be, although in one game at Detroit he amazed the bleacherites by whipping a ball in from deep center to the plate in true Goslin fashion. Rumors were afloat at the time that Goslin figured he might go to Detroit with Harris and that he wanted to show Detroit fans that he was as good as of yore. Others contended that in the heat of battle he forgot that his arm was lame. The latter probably was what happened.

Goose, christened Leon Allen, is said to have received his nickname because of the shape of his proboscis, or nose. During the world's series with Pittsburgh, in 1925, "Oil" Smith, the Pirate catcher rode Goslin so steadily about his beak that the Senator had some difficulty in finding the ball. But despite this he hit .308 during that Fall's classic. In 1924 Goose hit .344 in the big series against the New York Giants.

Goslin is only 27 and already he has made 1,277 hits for Washington in the eight seasons he has been a Senator, and scored 635 runs, which isn't a bad record as records go. He hits fairly consistently around the .340 mark and only once in his ten years of professional baseball has he fallen under the .300 mark. In 1921, his first year in the major leagues, Goslin hit .260 for the Senators.

He thought last Fall that the rest over the Winter might put his arm back in tip-top shape again, but even if he comes into Spring training with a bum wing it is likely that he will go right on being a one-armed fielder. His record last year proved conclusively that he can still rap the apple and as long as he can keep up with the other sluggers in the American League it is probable that he will continue gardening for the Senators.

So long as he can hit he doesn't have to worry.

Hornsby, who is 33, batted .387 as manager of the Boston Braves last season. With worries of a manager off his shoulders, Hornsby certainly should play as well the coming season as he did last season.

Those who expect Hornsby to fall into his evil ways again were surprised to learn recently that he had signed a pledge with President Veeck to refrain from betting on the races or any other gambling games during the life of his three-year contract with the Cubs.

The only contemplated shift in the remainder of the line-up is to try Clarence Blair and Danny Taylor at third base along with Clyde Beck. Taylor, who also plays the outfield, batted .374 for Memphis and has a reputation as a daring base runner. Blair batted .294 for Little Rock.

Charley Grimm at first base and English at shortstop will complete the infield. The only other infielder on the roster is Norman McMillan, who was a utility man last season.

The Cubs have the same group of outfielders as last season. Stephenson in left, Wilson in center and Cuyler in right will form the regular trio, with Heathcote in a reserve role. Taylor may be used in the outfield if he fails to win a berth at third base.

Five new pitchers are on the squad. Outstanding among them is Mike Cvengros, southpaw who has had tryouts with Washington and the White Sox. Cvengros, who won 21 games and lost 8 for Wichita Falls, is counted on to replace Percy Jones, shipped to the Braves in the Hornsby deal.

The other new pitchers are Clyde Day, who won 17 games and lost 18 for Omaha; Roy Hansen, who won 12 games and lost 17 for Elmira, N. Y.; Berlyn Horne, who won 15 games and lost 17 for Jersey City; and Eddie Lautenbacher, who won 10 games and lost five for Reading.

Hal Carlson, who was ill most of last season, hopes to return in good shape and take his regular turn along with Sheriff Blake, Guy Bush, Charley Root, Art Nehf and Percy Malone. Henry Grampp and Edward Holley, who were with the Cubs last season, may develop into regulars.

Gabby Hartnett and Mike Gonzales will again take care of the catching. Tom Angley, who batted .323 for Atlanta, and Bob Grace, who batted .336 for Little Rock, will be given tryouts as catchers.

The Cubs' tentative squad follows:

Catchers — Hartnett, Gonzales, Angley or Grace.

Pitchers — Blake, Bush, Carlson, Cvengros, Malone, Nehf, Root, Grampp Day, Lautenbacher.

Infield—Grimm at first; Hornsby at second; English at shortstop; Beck, Taylor or Blair at third. McMillan, reserve.

PROVED SENSATION OF AMERICAN LEAGUE BY WINNING 3RD PLACE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Feb. 15—The St. Louis Browns have come a long way since this time a year ago.

Completely rebuilt last season by Dan Howley, the Browns proved the sensation of the American League by finishing in third place. New players acquired since last season may bolster the Browns into a high-powered pennant contender the coming season.

Fifteen new players have been obtained to strengthen the Browns' weak spots. Five of the most promising are pitchers. They include Warren (Rip) Collins, who formerly pitched for the Yankees, Tigers and Red Sox and won 17 games and lost 9 for Toronto in the International League last season; Claude Jonnard, who won 19 games and lost 11 for Milwaukee; Herb Cobb, who won 14 games and lost 7 for Wichita Falls; John Buvid, who won 21 games and lost 11 for the Spartanburg South Atlantic League club, and Oscar Estrada, who won 13 games and lost 12 for Shreveport.

Collins, Cobb and Jonnard are being counted on to help Crowder, Gray, Blaeholder, Stewart, Coffman and Ogden keep the Browns well up in the race.

Three new catchers have been added to the veterans, Wally Schang and Clyde Manion. The outstanding of these is Dick Ferrell, who received a bonus of $25,000 for signing with the Browns after Judge Landis declared him a free agent, releasing him from previous entanglements. He caught 126 games and batted .333 for Columbus last season. He is expected to be the Browns' first string catcher. Harvey Johnson from the Greenville, South Atlantic League club, and Ike Danning from the New Haven Eastern League club are the other two catching additions.

The Browns' infield may find two new figures at second and third base. Lu Blue will again play first base, and Ralph Kress will be at shortstop, but the other two places are doubtful.

Ed Roetz, who batted .267 for Wichita Falls, and Leonard Dondero who batted .373 for Tulsa, will battle with Otis Brannon for the keystone assignment. Edward Grimes, who batted .334 for Tulsa, will compete with Leonard Sax and Frank O'Rourke for third base.

George Stanton, a youngster from Wichita Falls with a batting average of .301, will make a bid for first base.

Two new outfielders will compete with Heinie Manush, Earl McNeely and Fred Schulte for the outfield positions. Tom Jenkins, who was up before with the Red Sox, and batted .348 for Wichita Falls, is considered a vastly improved player. He has hit 69 home runs in three seasons in the Texas League.

The other recruit outfielder is Morris Badgro, who was coached how to hit by Sam Crawford while playing with the University of Southern California. He batted .334 for Tulsa last season.

Frank McGowan, who joined the Browns from Kansas City last season, also will be available for outfield duty.

The probable squad includes:

Catchers—Ferrell, Schang, Manion.

Pitchers—Gray, Crowder, Ogden, Blaeholder, Stewart, Coffman, Collins, Cobb, Jonnard, Strelicki.

Infield—Blue at first, Dondero or Brannon at second, Kress at shortstop, O'Rourke or Grimes at third.

Outfield — Manush, Schulte, McNeely, Jenkins, McGowan and Badgro, reserves.

GOOSE GOSLIN, of the Washington Senators, nosed out Heinie Manush, of the St. Louis Browns, for the hitting honors in the American League by a one point margin last season. If you like your decimals long drawn-out, the official league standing on the two sluggers doped as follows:

	G	A.B.	R	P.H.	2B.	3B.	H.R.	P.C.
Goslin	135	496	173	189	39	10	11	.3783
Manush	154	638	241	267	47	20	13	.3777

For quite a time prior to the publication of the official league standings it was thought that Manush had won out and there are still a lot of fans who feel that Heinie deserved the honor over Goslin in view of the fact that he had performed in so many more games than Goose. But the league figures stand and Goslin's name will go down with baseball immortals.

Goslin was out of the Washington line-up for some time, owing to an injured arm, and even during the season Goose never threw a ball in from the outfield more than a few times. Bob Reeves, the Senator's shortstop, dashed back whenever a ball was cracked into Goslin's territory and relayed the throw back into the infield.

The fact that Bucky Harris kept Goslin in the lineup at Washington last year despite his injury was a great tribute to the base hit. Harris figured, and rightly, that any runs which came in for the opposition due to Goose's inability to get the ball back would be more than offset by Goslin's ability with the mace. No one seems to know just how Goslin's arm was injured. There was a story going the rounds that he had first sprained it while pitching horseshoes during Spring training, but Goslin never admitted that this was the cause of the trouble and, for that matter, the exact cause has never been publicly settled. The arm was bad, or supposed to be, although in one game at Detroit he amazed the bleacherites by whipping a ball in from deep center to the plate in true Goslin fashion. Rumors were afloat at the time that Goslin figured he might go to Detroit with Harris and that he wanted to show Detroit fans that he was as good as of yore. Others contended that in the heat of battle he forgot that his arm was lame. The latter probably was what happened.

Goose, christened Leon Allen, is said to have received his nickname because of the shape of his proboscis, or nose. During the world's series with Pittsburgh, in 1925, "Oil" Smith, the Pirate catcher rode Goslin so steadily about his beak that the Senator had some difficulty in finding the ball. But despite this he hit .308 during that Fall's classic. In 1924 Goose hit .344 in the big series against the New York Giants.

Goslin is only 27 and already he has made 1,277 hits for Washington in the eight seasons he has been a Senator, and scored 635 runs, which isn't a bad record as records go. He hits fairly consistently around the .340 mark and only once in his ten years of professional baseball has he fallen under the .300 mark. In 1921, his first year in the major leagues, Goslin hit .260 for the Senators.

He thought last Fall that the rest over the Winter might put his arm back in tip-top shape again, but even if he comes into Spring training with a bum wing it is likely that he will go right on being a one-armed fielder. His record last year proved conclusively that he can still rap the apple and as long as he can keep up with the other sluggers in the American League it is probable that he will continue gardening for the Senators.

So long as he can hit he doesn't have to worry.

EFFORT TO RESCUE MAN BURIED ALIVE

PAUL LAMONT IN "WORST PRISON ON EARTH," STATED

CONFINED ON DEVIL'S ISLAND, PRISONER A WELL READ BELGIAN

By FRANK H. BARTHOLOMEW
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
Copyright 1929 by United Press

Los Angeles, Calif., Feb. 15.—(UP)—An effort to rescue a man buried alive for forty six years in the "worst prison on earth" was begun here today.

The man is Paul Lamont, a citizen of Belgium and a former master of languages at London unversity. The prison is Devil's Island and its associated penal colony of St. Laurent De Maroni, in French Guiana.

Six years ago Lamont, now 78 years of age, had finished a forty year sentence for forgery and was a free man. Today he is more surely a prisoner than at any time during his forty years of servitude, according to a report to the Belgian ambassador at Washington by W. E. Allison-Booth, American, who himself had just returned from the French penal settlements.

Booth second officer on a supply steamer, spent three monhts at St. Laurent while he became acquainted, he said, with many of the thousands of men who are "not allowed to live, not allowed to die" in the equatorial prisons, including Paul Lamont.

Lamont's plight so touched him, Booth said, that immediately upon reaching Los Angeles he sent the following letter to the Belgian ambassador:

"I have just returned from the French penal settlement of St. Laurent De Maroni, and I feel it my duty to call your attention to the pitiable case of a citizen of your country.

"This man, Paul Lamont by name, has been at the settlement for 46 years, during the last six of which he has been a free man. However, owing to the French government making no arrangement for the return of prisoners after completing sentences, he has been in abject poverty and near starvation for six years with no prospect of earning enough to return to the civilized world before he dies.

"During the past six years, since his freedom, he has kept alive by doing small tasks for the Chinese storekeepers."

Lamont, Booth points out, is no longer even a ward of the French prison authorities. He lives on the doles he can earn from Chinese storekeepers, which never amount to more sous than enough to buy a little bread.

In an exclusive interview with the United Press, Booth told of some of the things he saw and heard at St. Laurent which cost him eight days in a dungeon, and came near making his stay at St. Laurent permanent.

"It is commonly supposed," Booth said, "that Devil's Island is the penal settlement, this is not so. The 'Rock,' as it is termed, is but a sort of receiving station. Here the prisoners are given a period of solitary confinement. When they are thoroughly disciplined and the spirits completely broken, they are transferred to one of the settlements, the principal being St. Laurent.

"To get to St. Laurent you have to steam 40 miles up the sluggish Maroni river. On each side is dense jungle. Monkeys chatter in the trees. Parrots screech overhead. A regiment of men could be a hundred feet away without giving any trace.

"When the ship is tied up at the wooden jetty, convicts are marched aboard by the guards to unload it. They are the most hopeless men in the universe, for escape through the jungle is almost impossible, and there is scarcely a chance in a million that they will ever see France again.

"For after they have served their sentences they must do another equal amount of time as 'preventative detention,' after which they are free to get away if they can pay their passage. But as they are not allowed to have money while prisoners and as St. Laurent offers them no way of making more than the tiniest pittance by labor after they are free, there is almost no hope.

"Escapes are so rare that when they are accomplished they are world wide news stories.

"St. Laurent is only six degrees from the equator, but the convicts are issued neither hats nor shoes. One day I counted nine convicts who dropped down from the effects of the sun. The guards made no effort to help them and when two other convicts made a move to assist them they were belabored with whips.

"Even the privilege of bathing in the shark infested river has been denied the men because of the number of suicides by convicts who had come to prefer the man-killers in the water to the man-killers on shore, and deliberately swam out beyond the safety of the shallow water. Such washing as is done now must be done with water out of the drinking ration.

"This is the kind of thing Paul Lamont suffered for forty years as a convict. Since his 'release,' things have been even worse, for now he is not attached for rations. He is ragged and bearded and almost hopeless—yet through it all he has kept his mind sane and bright.

New York, Feb. 15. — (UP) — An anonymous member of the national committee on prisons and prison labors today offered to pay for the passage to Belgium of Paul Lamont, former master of languages at London university, who at the age of 78 is stranded in French Guiana after serving 40 years in the French penal colony of St. Laurent De Maroni there.

Lamont's plight was made known in an exclusive United Press dispatch from Los Angeles, printed in afternoon papers here.

W. E. Allison-Booth, former second officer of a supply ship plying between New York and the prison colony, reached Los Angeles and told the United Press Lamont's pitiable story.

WRIGLEY THROWS HIS SUPPORT TO COL. STEWART

LATTER FIGHTING TO RETAIN CONTROL OF STANDARD OIL CO. OF INDIANA

MR. WRIGLEY HAD PREVIOUSLY SIGNED PROXIES IN FAVOR OF ROCKEFELLER

New York, Feb. 15.—(UP) — It was reported in Wall Street today that William Wrigley, Jr., Chicago chewing gum magnate, had thrown his support to Col. Robert W. Stewart in the latter's fight to retain the chairmanship of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana.

Wrigley previously had signed proxies in favor of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., who is seeking to oust Stewart because of his connection with the Continental Trading Co.

The report brought forth fresh predictions from both factions concerning the outcome of the "battle of the proxies" which will be held at the stockholders' meeting of Standard of Indiana at Whiting, Ind., on March 7. Rockefeller's supporters reiterated their statement that they already had enough proxies to remove Stewart.

The Stewart faction, however, insisted that proxies now held by Rockefeller were being revoked and thrown to the support of their case.

Coincident with the rumor of Wrigley's switch, it was reported that in the event of Stewart losing the 'battle of the proxies," the chairmanship of Standard of Indiana would be offered to James Moffet, son of the founder of Standard Oil of Indiana.

HARD WATER PLUS MEL'O MAKES SOFT WATER

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

Bathing and Melo just go together

THE man, woman or child who bathes and doesn't use Melo to soften the water doesn't know what they are missing. Melo softens hard water. It makes a delightfully sudsy bath. It doesn't let the water form a dirty ring around the tub. That's good news to women who scrub off the dirty ring!

Water softened with Melo is a wonderful cleaner, with or without soap. Melo saves soap, too, from ⅓ to ½ the amount ordinarily used. It makes soap much more effective. Use it wherever you need soft water. Get it at your grocer's.

Motorists, However, Are Urged to Carry Chains and Shovels for Emergencies

All routes in the Minnesota trunk highway system are open and nearly all of them are good, according to the weekly road condition report issued by the StateHighway department today. ELECTRIC ROOM COOLER

New Device Was a Feature at Frigidaire Meeting, Says J. C. Clausen

"Amazing," is the only word to describe adequately the engineering progress reflected in new Frigidaire products, shown at the organization's convention in Chicago, according to J. C. Clausen, local dealer, who returned from the meeting last night.

"The electric room cooler exhibited at the convention, indicates that refrigeration will ultimately rank with heat in its importance to the welfare and comfort of the human race," he declared. "This cooler in tests has lowered the temperature of an average size room ten degrees in thirty minutes and at the same time reduced the humidity ten per cent.

"Personally, I was most interested in the new cold control for household models, which was also displayed. This is a small dial, with six notches. Simply by turning this dial, the housewife is able to get any one of six freezing speeds in the dessert and ice trays. The freezing time of ice cubes is cut nearly in half. Ice cream now keeps perfectly, with this device attached.

"The convention went wild with enthusiasm when informed that the cold control has been made so that it can easily be attached to models now in use."

A new household model, selling at the lowest price in Frigidaire history also was announced.

ELECTRIC ROOM COOLER

"Amazing," is the only word to describe adequately the engineering progress reflected in new Frigidaire products, shown at the organization's convention in Chicago, according to J. C. Clausen, local dealer, who returned from the meeting last night.

"The electric room cooler exhibited at the convention, indicates that refrigeration will ultimately rank with heat in its importance to the welfare and comfort of the human race," he declared. "This cooler in tests has lowered the temperature of an average size room ten degrees in thirty minutes and at the same time reduced the humidity ten per cent.

"Personally, I was most interested in the new cold control for household models, which was also displayed. This is a small dial, with six notches. Simply by turning this dial, the housewife is able to get any one of six freezing speeds in the dessert and ice trays. The freezing time of ice cubes is cut nearly in half. Ice cream now keeps perfectly, with this device attached.

"The convention went wild with enthusiasm when informed that the cold control has been made so that it can easily be attached to models now in use."

A new household model, selling at the lowest price in Frigidaire history also was announced.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

IRENE ROBELINE married Guinn Holden, young and handsome Texas minister, shortly after Lilith, his first wife, died, leaving an infant Lilith. Irene, secretly in love with Guinn, had seen him practically snatched away by the beautiful blonde and coquettish Lilith, who had boasted of her ability to make Guinn propose to her. Instead of the love that Irene expected to enjoy to complete her happiness, she found always the unseen barrier of the dead Lilith haunting Holden's mind and enthroned in his heart. He spoiled the child, granting her every wish and fancy. Even when Irene's child came he referred to her as "Lilith's little sister." This was Tina, who grows up a dark-eyed, lovely child, sweet and thoughtful, but conscious of her secondary position to the beautiful Lilith in her father's heart. Irene ponders this poignant problem that has persisted during the years of marriage to Holden. Even Ross and Lundy, the boys, and little Patricia, the youngest, were similarly regarded by their father. How to supplant this "golden ghost" of the glorious dead Lilith was made doubly difficult because of the grown-up Lilith, who had not only her mother's beauty, but greater intellect to support her selfish desires and strengthen her hold on her father's affection. Graduated from college, Lilith tells her father she wishes to study voice in New York. Tina, too, wants to pursue an art course. "Lilith is the elder," the father would reply when Irene remonstrated. Tina, however, was the favorite of Will Lundy, town doctor, who had been in love with Irene. Tina, hurt when Lilith doesn't want her at Roger Devereaux's house party, returns to Summer school. Lilith announces her engagement to Roger. Young Dan Ripley, away eight years, is present at the announcement party.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXIX.

A DAY or two later Miss Malvina's will was read, a document which a lawyer had drawn up and kept through all the vagaries of her own home-made testaments, which it appears she had herself destroyed. She had left Guinn and Irene $2,000 each, with certain restrictions.

"This money is not to be spent in any way for church or religious or charitable activities. It is pleasure money. I hope that it may be spent foolishly, for something that will bring the legatees personal enjoyment."

The legatees were touched and grateful.

"Poor old nutcracker," said Ross. "She wasn't half as cuckoo as I thought. I sure am glad she barred the church, or this money would go glimmering."

"Pleasure money," mused Lilith, with a dreamy look in her eyes.

"Now, Lil, don't you be planning to grab this for your trousseau!" snapped Ross.

"No, I'm not," she said.

Tina spoke, looking at her father and mother. "Now you two parents can take that trip to the Holy Land that you've always wanted. I'll be home next Summer and can take care of the house."

Irene's eyes glistened with tears. "I think she was as devoted to you, Guinn, as any member in our church. I wish I'd been more patient in my thoughts of her."

"You might have made a few more thousand codicils," jeered Ross.

She sighed. "Well, it will be a comfort to have a little money in the bank."

"Pleasure money, for foolishness," Tina sternly reminded her. She tweaked her father's ear. "You would buy a new car, a good one, only that would be for the family and the church as much as for you, and Miss Malvina mightn't approve. She wanted you to spend that all on your two selves."

"Well, we don't have to decide today, do we?" said Irene comfortably. "The will doesn't say if the money isn't squandered in twenty-four hours the legatees will have to be divorced. I can spend my part of that money in a thousand ways, just by thinking about it in the bank."

"You can spend the int'rest on us, Moth, can't you?" asked Lundy anxiously.

"Personal pleasure," Ross reminded him with firmness. "We'll allow no unselfishness in this matter. I want to see you two turn loose and be recklessly extravagant for yourselves once in life. I take my hat off to Miss Malvina."

"She left a letter for us," Guinn went on. "She said: 'I've always wanted to do something that would make life easier and happier for my pastor and his wife.'"

"She must have stinted herself in a thousand ways to be able to do this for us," said Irene.

"I wish the rich members of the church showed as much interest in your pleasure fund," commented Lilith.

"You could spend any amount foolishly, couldn't you, Lil?" asked Ross.

"Yes."

"Still craving limousines and yachts and palaces?" her father said teasingly.

"They still seem very desirable."

"You sure do fly high in your tastes, Lil. How do you get that way?" mocked Ross.

She smiled her little disdainful smile that held its own secret of mirth, not to be shared with anyone, least of all her family.

A week later, when Justine had gone back to college and the parsonage had settled into normal calmness again after the Christmas gaiety, Irene said to Lilith, "We must be getting some plans outlined for the wedding."

"There's plenty of time," was the casual answer.

"But Easter's not far off, and it will be so much easier for us if we don't have to rush at the last."

"There's no need for being rushed."

Irene said no more. Lilith's subtle superiority of tone was so exasperating!

That afternoon as Guinn was ready to start off in his shabby car, Lilith smilingly took her place beside him. "Want company?"

His eyes lighted with pleasure. "Indeed, I do. But when did you begin taking an interest in visiting sick old women?"

"I haven't. I just want to talk with you, all by myself."

"Well now, that's nice. Pretty soon my little girl will be gone away, and her old dad won't have a chance to see her." He sighed.

She laid her gloved hand on his and turned the witchery of her eyes upon him.

"Father, you know Mrs. Dean is going to New York to stay a year, for Ellen to study art."

"Yes," he said absent-mindedly. He was thinking how frightfully he would miss Lilith when she was married and gone away to live.

Lilith spoke softly. "Father, I want to go with her."

"What?" He also ran the car into a post in his astonishment.

"Yes, I mean it. I do."

"But what about Roger—and your wedding?"

She leaned toward him, and spoke rapidly, as if she had rehearsed what she would say. "Father, you wanted me to wait a while before I married, and I've come to think I'd like to wait a year."

He looked at her closely, trying to discover what secret was behind all this.

"Don't you love Roger? If not, don't marry him, of course, my darling."

"I think I love him. I think I want to marry him, and I'll go on being engaged to him. But I want a year to see for sure."

His look expressed vast relief. "All right, that suits me to the ground. But stay here at home with me instead of going to New York."

The blue eyes filmed with tears. "I'm bored sick with this place! Not with you, Father, but with this poky little town. What is there here for me? Just to sing in the choir and go to a dozen church services a week?"

"I don't recall that you ever did that," he said with humorous indulgence.

"I'll be driven to it if I have to stay here. I want to get away, to find myself, and I don't want to marry just to get a ticket to Europe!"

Her cheeks were flushed, her eyes eager, appealing, as she tucked her hand inside his arm.

"Of course not. You mustn't marry for any reason in the world but love," he said emphatically.

"Then give me a year to study singing, and at the end of that time I'll know whether I love Roger or not."

"Times are pretty tight, and my salary's small, you know," he answered with a doubtful tightening of his lips.

She gave his arm an affectionate squeeze. "Yes, I know, and I've been a frightful expense to you. I wouldn't have said a word about this, if it hadn't been for Miss Malvina's two thousand."

"I see," he said thoughtfully.

"I can study voice and have a wonderful year in New York, and then if I marry Roger, I can know it's because I love him. If I don't, then I can turn to something else, make my living in some way."

He chuckled as he glanced down at her. Might as well expect a fluff of thistledown or a canary bird to hold a job and make its living as a girl like Lilith! When every man that laid eyes on her wanted to marry her!

"But you're so young and inexperienced, and New York is full of temptations."

"Oh, don't be the heavy father in melodrama! I've always known how to take care of myself, and besides I'll be with Mrs. Dean and Ellen."

His look was sobered. "I'll think it over."

"No, dearest, promise me now," she implored. "If you go home and talk it over with Mother, she'll throw ice water on the plan. This is just between you and me, because I'm your daughter."

"She has been a good mother to you, Lilith," he said gravely.

"I know, I know. But, Father, don't you ever think that I'd like to do some things in the way my own mother would have liked?"

He was silent, his lips pressed tightly together.

"And I want to do this more than anything in the world. After I'm married it will be too late, for I'll not be free then." She spoke softly, coaxingly. "It would give you pleasure, wouldn't it, to let me be perfectly happy for one year?"

"I'd give my life to make you happy, if that were necessary," he said unsteadily.

You foolish father—only two thousand dollars. And maybe some day I can pay that back to you a hundredfold."

He gave a heavy sigh, unable to resist her cajolement. "I doubt the wisdom of this, Lilith—but if you have your heart set on it, I won't refuse you."

She kissed him rapturously. "Oh, Father, I'm so happy! And you won't let anyone make you take back your promise to me, will you?"

"No."

Maybe this was folly, he told himself. Maybe he was weak to give her his word, but he'd let her have her will this time. It was only a year, only two thousand dollars, and she was his heart's beloved, his dead Lilith's daughter. . . .

LEADERS HOLD POSITIONS IN THE PIN TOURNAMENT

INTERNATIONAL BOWLING ASSOCIATION PLAYING AT MINNEAPOLIS

A. O. U. W. TEAM OF ST. PAUL WITH 2,933 PINS LEADS IN FIVE-MAN EVENT

Minneapolis, Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Leaders, with one exception, held their positions in the International Bowling association tournament yesterday undaunted by the low scores rolled in Wednesday's shifts.

The A. O. U. W. team of St. Paul toppled a total of 2,933 pins to take the leadership of the five-man event over the Eau Claire Northern States Power quint. The Eau Claire entries held second place with their 2,920 scores rolled last week.

F. Macho and A. Zjerten, St. Cloud, apparently have assured themselves of first money in the singles with their 1,335 score. Minneapolis and St. Paul bowlers had the alleys to themselves in the single shifts yesterday and the best score turned in was 1,185.

Al Hahn, Minneapolis, with 699, and A. Cumming, also of Minneapolis, with 682 continue to hold the first places in the singles. Rudy Matak, St. Paul, advanced to third place in the individual event with a 662.

Three leaders are closely bunched in the all-event group. They are H. Larson, Minneapolis, 1,853; Al Hahn, Minneapolis, 1,828; and A. Cumming, Minneapolis 1,826.

FIGHT FANS COMPARE TWO HEAVYWEIGHTS

SEE JACK SHARKEY AND YOUNG STRIBLING IN SPIRITED WORKOUTS

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Fight fans who saw Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling step through spirited workouts yesterday in preparation for their fight Feb. 27, were able to compare the condition of the pair for the first time today.

The Boston heavyweight worked nine rounds at his training camp at the Miami Beach Kennel club while the Georgian stepped through a seven round workout in an abandoned swimming tank.

Of the two, Sharkey appeared the more impressive. His work attracted the larger crowd. He boxed with Johnny Grosso, Paul Hoffman and Pat McCarthy while Stribling was working against Rush Heise, Tony Fuente, Jeff Carroll and Johnny Bell.

The problem of a referee is expected to be settled tomorrow when Jack Dempsey meets "Pa" Stribling and Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, again.

WELTERWEIGHTS GANS, FIELDS IN SPOTLIGHT

New York, Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Welterweights will hold the spotlight at Madison Square Garden tonight when Baby Joe Gans and Jackie Fields meet in the feature 10 round event of the evening's program.

Fields is ruling a slight favorite. In a previous match on the west coast he outpointed Gans. Gans is inclined to discredit the California victory of Fields, declaring he gave away five pounds and was not in form.

The winner of tonight's bout is expected to make a strong call for a title bout with Joe Dundee, present champion of the welter division.

WISCONSIN RULES FAVORITE IN TRACK AND FIELD MEET

Madison, Wis., Feb. 15.—(UP)—Wisconsin ruled the favorite to take the quadrangular track and field meet to be run here tomorrow night. The Badgers are conceded a slight edge over Northwestern, Chicago and Ohio State, although Chicago is expected to have a strong team. The fact that Wisconsin is on its home ground may give them an advantage.

Impatient Griselda

by Dorothy Scarborough

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

IRENE ROBELINE married Guinn Holden, young and handsome Texas minister, shortly after Lilith, his first wife, died, leaving an infant Lilith. Irene, secretly in love with Guinn, had seen him practically snatched away by the beautiful blonde and coquettish Lilith, who had boasted of her ability to make Guinn propose to her. Instead of the love that Irene expected to enjoy to complete her happiness, she found always the unseen barrier of the dead Lilith haunting Holden's mind and enthroned in his heart. He spoiled the child, granting her every wish and fancy. Even when Irene's child came he referred to her as "Lilith's little sister." This was Tina, who grows up a dark-eyed, lovely child, sweet and thoughtful, but conscious of her secondary position to the beautiful Lilith in her father's heart. Irene ponders this poignant problem that has persisted during the years of marriage to Holden. Even Ross and Lundy, the boys, and little Patricia, the youngest, were similarly regarded by their father. How to supplant this "golden ghost" of the glorious dead Lilith was made doubly difficult because of the grown-up Lilith, who had not only her mother's beauty, but greater intellect to support her selfish desires and strengthen her hold on her father's affection. Graduated from college, Lilith tells her father she wishes to study voice in New York. Tina, too, wants to pursue an art course. "Lilith is the older," the father would reply when Irene remonstrated. Tina, however, was the favorite of Will Lundy, town doctor, who had been in love with Irene. Tina, hurt when Lilith doesn't want her at Roger Devereaux's house party, returns to Summer school. Lilith announces her engagement to Roger. Young Dan Ripley, away eight years, is present at the announcement party.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XXIX.

A DAY or two later Miss Malvina's will was read, a document which a lawyer had drawn up and kept through all the vagaries of her own home-made testaments, which it appears she had herself destroyed. She had left Guinn and Irene $2,000 each, with certain restrictions.

"This money is not to be spent in any way for church or religious or charitable activities. It is pleasure money. I hope that it may be spent foolishly, for something that will bring the legatees personal enjoyment."

The legatees were touched and grateful.

"Poor old nutcracker," said Ross. "She wasn't half as cuckoo as I thought. I sure am glad she barred the church, or this money would go glimmering."

"Pleasure money," mused Lilith, with a dreamy look in her eyes.

"Now, Lil, don't you be planning to grab this for your trousseau!" snapped Ross.

"No, I'm not," she said.

Tina spoke, looking at her father and mother. "Now you two parents can take that trip to the Holy Land that you've always wanted. I'll be home next Summer and can take care of the house."

Irene's eyes glistened with tears. "I think she was as devoted to you, Guinn, as any member in our church. I wish I'd been more patient in my thoughts of her."

"You might have made a few more thousand codicils," jeered Ross.

She sighed. "Well, it will be a comfort to have a little money in the bank."

"Pleasure money, for foolishness," Tina sternly reminded her. She tweaked her father's ear. "You could buy a new car, a good one, only that would be for the family and the church as much as for you, and Miss Malvina mightn't approve. She wanted you to spend that all on your two selves."

"Well, we don't have to decide today, do we?" said Irene comfortably. "The will doesn't say if the money isn't squandered in twenty-four hours the legatees will have to be divorced. I can spend my part of that money in a thousand ways, just by thinking about it in the bank."

"You can spend the int'rest on us, Moth, can't you?" asked Lundy anxiously.

"Personal pleasure," Ross reminded him with firmness. "We'll allow no unselfishness in this matter. I want to see you two turn loose and be recklessly extravagant for yourselves once in life. I take my hat off to Miss Malvina."

"She left a letter for us," Guinn went on. "She said: 'I've always wanted to do something that would make life easier and happier for my pastor and his wife.'"

"She must have stinted herself in a thousand ways to be able to do this for us," said Irene.

"I wish the rich members of the church showed as much interest in your pleasure fund," commented Lilith.

"You could spend any amount foolishly, couldn't you, Lil?" asked Ross.

"Yes."

"Still craving limousines and yachts and palaces?" her father said teasingly.

"They still seem very desirable."

"You sure do fly high in your tastes, Lil. How do you get that way?" mocked Ross.

She smiled her little disdainful smile that held its own secret of mirth, not to be shared with anyone, least of all her family.

A week later, when Justine had gone back to college and the parsonage had settled into normal calmness again after the Christmas gaiety, Irene said to Lilith, "We must be getting some plans outlined for the wedding."

"There's plenty of time," was the casual answer.

"But Easter's not far off, and it will be so much easier for us if we don't have to rush at the last."

"There's no need for being rushed."

Irene said no more. Lilith's subtle superiority of tone was so exasperating!

That afternoon as Guinn was ready to start off in his shabby car, Lilith smilingly took her place beside him. "Want company?"

His eyes lighted with pleasure. "Indeed, I do. But when did you begin taking an interest in visiting sick old women?"

"I haven't. I just want to talk with you, all by myself."

"Well now, that's nice. Pretty soon my little girl will be gone away, and her old dad won't have a chance to see her." He sighed.

She laid her gloved hand on his and turned the witchery of her eyes upon him.

"Father, you know Mrs. Dean is going to New York to stay a year, for Ellen to study art."

"Yes," he said absent-mindedly. He was thinking how frightfully he would miss Lilith when she was married and gone away to live.

Lilith spoke softly. "Father, I want to go with her."

"What?" He also ran the car into a post in his astonishment.

"Yes, I mean it. I do."

"But what about Roger—and your wedding?"

She leaned toward him, and spoke rapidly, as if she had rehearsed what she would say. "Father, you wanted me to wait a while before I married, and I've come to think I'd like to wait a year."

He looked at her closely, trying to discover what secret was behind all this.

"Don't you love Roges? If not, don't marry him, of course, my darling."

"I think I love him. I think I want to marry him, and I'll go on being engaged to him. But I want a year to see for sure."

His look expressed vast relief. "All right, that suits me to the ground. But stay here at home with me instead of going to New York."

The blue eyes filmed with tears. "I'm bored sick with this place! Not with you, Father, but with this poky little town. What is there here for me? Just to sing in the choir and go to a dozen church services a week?"

"I don't recall that you ever did that," he said with humorous indulgence.

"I'll be driven to it if I have to stay here. I want to get away, to find myself, and I don't want to marry just to get a ticket to Europe!"

Her cheeks were flushed, her eyes eager, appealing, as she tucked her hand inside his arm.

"Of course not. You mustn't marry for any reason in the world but love," he said emphatically.

"Then give me a year to study singing, and at the end of that time I'll know whether I love Roger or not."

"Times are pretty tight, and my salary's small, you know," he answered with a doubtful tightening of his lips.

She gave his arm an affectionate squeeze. "Yes, I know, and I've been a frightful expense to you. I wouldn't have said a word about this, if it hadn't been for Miss Malvina's two thousand."

"I see," he said thoughtfully.

"I can study voice and have a wonderful year in New York, and then if I marry Roger, I can know it's because I love him. If I don't, then I can turn to something else, make my living in some way."

He chuckled as he glanced down at her. Might as well expect a fluff of thistledown or a canary bird to hold a job and make its living as a girl like Lilith! When every man that laid eyes on her wanted to marry her!

"But you're so young and inexperienced, and New York is full of temptations."

"Oh, don't be the heavy father in melodrama! I've always known how to take care of myself, and besides I'll be with Mrs. Dean and Ellen."

His look was sobered. "I'll think it over."

"No, dearest, promise me now," she implored. "If you go home and talk it over with Mother, she'll throw ice water on the plan. This is just between you and me, because I'm your daughter."

"She has been a good mother to you, Lilith," he said gravely.

"I know, I know. But, Father, don't you ever think that I'd like to do some things in the way my own mother would have liked?"

He was silent, his lips pressed tightly together.

"And I want to do this more than anything in the world. After I'm married it will be too late, for I'll not be free then." She spoke softly, coaxingly. "It would give you pleasure, wouldn't it, to let me be perfectly happy for one year?"

"I'd give my life to make you happy, if that were necessary," he said unsteadily.

You foolish father—only two thousand dollars. And maybe some day I can pay that back to you a hundredfold."

He gave a heavy sigh, unable to resist her cajolement. "I doubt the wisdom of this, Lilith—but if you have your heart set on it, I won't refuse you."

She kissed him rapturously. "Oh, Father, I'm so happy! And you won't let anyone make you take back your promise to me, will you?"

"No."

Maybe this was folly, he told himself. Maybe he was weak to give her his word, but he'd let her have her will this time. It was only a year, only two thousand dollars, and she was his heart's beloved, his dead Lilith's daughter. . . .

LEADERS HOLD POSITIONS IN THE PIN TOURNAMENT

INTERNATIONAL BOWLING ASSOCIATION PLAYING AT MINNEAPOLIS

A. O. U. W. TEAM OF ST. PAUL WITH 2,933 PINS LEADS IN FIVE-MAN EVENT

Minneapolis, Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Leaders, with one exception, held their positions, in the International Bowling association tournament yesterday undaunted by the low scores rolled in Wednesday's shifts.

The A. O. U. W. team of St. Paul toppled a total of 2,933 pins to take the leadership of the five-man event over the Eau Claire Northern States Power quint. The Eau Claire entries held second place with their 2,920 scores rolled last week.

F. Macho and A. Zjerten, St. Cloud, apparently have assured themselves of first money in the singles with their 1,335 score. Minneapolis and St. Paul bowlers had the alleys to themselves in the single shifts yesterday and the best score turned in was 1,185.

Al Hahn, Minneapolis, with 699, and A. Cumming, also of Minneapolis, with 682 continue to hold the first places in the singles. Rudy Matak, St. Paul, advanced to third place in the individual event with a 662.

Three leaders are closely bunched in the all-event group. They are H. Larson, Minneapolis, 1,853; Al Hahn, Minneapolis, 1,828; and A. Cumming, Minneapolis 1,826.

FIGHT FANS COMPARE TWO HEAVYWEIGHTS

SEE JACK SHARKEY AND YOUNG STRIBLING IN SPIRITED WORKOUTS

Miami Beach, Fla., Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Fight fans who saw Jack Sharkey and Young Stribling step through spirited workouts yesterday in preparation for their fight Feb. 27, were able to compare the condition of the pair for the first time today.

The Boston heavyweight worked nine rounds at his training camp at the Miami Beach Kennel club while the Georgian stepped through a seven round workout in an abandoned swimming tank.

Of the two, Sharkey appeared the more impressive. His work attracted the larger crowd. He boxed with Johnny Grosso, Paul Hoffman and Pat McCarthy while Stribling was working against Rush Heise, Tony Fuente, Jeff Carroll and Johnny Bell.

The problem of a referee is expected to be settled tomorrow when Jack Dempsey meets "Pa" Stribling and Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, again.

WELTERWEIGHTS GANS, FIELDS IN SPOTLIGHT

New York, Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Welterweights will hold the spotlight at Madison Square Garden tonight when Baby Joe Gans and Jackie Fields meet in the feature 10 round event of the evening's program.

Fields is ruling a slight favorite. In a previous match on the west coast he outpointed Gans. Gans is inclined to discredit the California victory of Fields, declaring he gave away five pounds and was not in form.

The winner of tonight's bout is expected to make a strong call for a title bout with Joe Dundee, present champion of the welter division.

WISCONSIN RULES FAVORITE IN TRACK AND FIELD MEET

Madison, Wis., Feb. 15.—(U.P.)—Wisconsin ruled the favorite to take the quadrangular track and field meet to be run here tomorrow night. The Badgers are conceded a slight edge over Northwestern, Chicago and Ohio State, although Chicago is expected to have a strong team. The fact that Wisconsin is on its home ground may give them an advantage.
